Cuba: Visita de Obama no es el fin de problemas bilaterales

Por ANDREA RODRIGUEZ, Associated Press

LA HABANA, 9 III 16 problemas no se (AP): Pese a la importancia de la visita del presidente Barack Obama a Cuba, su simple presencia no será suficiente para eliminar de un plumazo todas las diferencias entre ambos países o los reclamos de la isla, aseguró el Partido Comunista.

Un extenso editorial del periódico oficial Granma el miércoles indicó que Obama será "bienvenido" a Cuba pero también enfatizó las diferencias que se formaron a lo largo de cinco décadas de ruptura.

"Para llegar a la normalización queda un largo y complejo camino por recorrer, que requerirá de la solución de asuntos claves, y que profundizaron el carácter confrontacional (de confrontación) de los vínculos entre los dos países", expresó el rotativo, órgano del Partido Comunista de Cuba.

Agregó que "tales

resolverán de la noche la mañana, ni con una visita presidencial".

La lista de reclamos de Cuba va desde "el levantamiento del bloqueo económico, comercial y financiero, que provoca privaciones al pueblo cubano" hasta la devolución de la Base Naval de Guantánamo.

El rotativo exigió además que Washington abandone su "pretensión de fabricar una oposición política interna sufragada con dinero de los c o n t r i b u y e n t e s estadounidenses" y cese las transmisiones de Radio y TV Martí, órganos pagados por el presupuesto federal con destino a Cuba v que casi nadie recibe pues la isla logró frenar la señal sobre su territorio.

Los reclamos de Cuba se producen pocas semanas antes de la visita del presidente Obama a la isla, el 21 y 22 de marzo, la primera de un mandatario en ejercicio desde 1928.

La gira de Obama por la isla está marcada por una intensa polémica en Estados Unidos entre sus defensores y detractores de la isla que consideran que el viaje presidencial dará credibilidad a un gobierno comunista y sistema de partido único.

Cuba por su parte insistió en este editorial que no tiene intenciones de realizar reformas políticas y que mantendrá su política de derechos humanos v justicia social. a la par que no desea que Washington se inmiscuya en sus asuntos internos.

Obama v el presidente Raúl Castro anunciaron en diciembre de 2014 el inicio de un proceso de deshielo v en 2015 reabrieron sus respectivas embajadas.

Mexicanos en Michigan y Norte de Ohio ya pueden tramitar su Credencial para Votar

Por: Isabel Flores, Corresponsal La Prensa

Detroit, MI: A partir del martes 8 de marzo, el Consulado de México en Detroit comenzó a realizar la captura de información para el trámite gratuito de la credencial de elector, la cual será procesada por el Instituto Nacional Electoral (INE) y enviada por correo al solicitante

El pasado 8 de febrero comenzaron a procesar solicitudes los consulados de Santa Ana, San Francisco, San José y Sacramento, en California, así como en las sedes consulares de Chicago, Dallas, Austin, Houston, San Antonio, Atlanta, Denver, Phoenix, Nueva York v Raleigh. El proceso ahora se extiende en más ciudades de Estados Unidos y a partir del 8 de agosto continuará en Europa, Asia Latinoamérica.

"Ya hicimos las pruebas necesarias y estamos listos para capturar la información de todos los mexicanos que viven en el exterior y deseen obtener su credencial para votar por primera vez o bien, renovar la existente", aseguró Juan Manuel Solana, Cónsul de México en Detroit.

El proceso para dicho trámite es el siguiente:

1. Hacer una cita con Mexitel al número gratuito: 1-877-MEXITEL (1-877-639-4835)

2. Preparar documentación: Acta de Nacimiento, identificación oficial con fotografía y comprobante de domicilio.

Mexitel se encargará de explicarles los requisitos que deben presentar y en caso de no contar con acta de nacimiento, la pueden tramitar directamente en el Consulado de México. La identificación tiene que ser mexicana, como por ejemplo: pasaporte, matrícula consular o credencial de elector vencida en caso de renovación. "Hasta ahora no me han confirmado si se aceptarán las licencias de manejo de México, estoy esperando que completen la información; sin embargo, yo sugiero usar el pasaporte o matricula ya que la mayoría de la gente lo tiene y si no, aquí podemos ayudarles también con el trámite", dijo el diplomático

El personal del Consulado se encargará de verificar la documentación presentada, capturarla y mandarla escaneada a las autoridades electorales de México para que ellos evalúen la información v emitan cuando consideran prudente, las credenciales. Una vez que estén listas, las enviarán por correo al solicitante, por eso es importante que la dirección sea correcta v completa. En caso de cambiar de domicilio. reportarlo de inmediato al Consulado.

El Cónsul Solana informó que hay una separación muy importante entre las autoridades electorales y el poder ejecutivo. "Nosotros somos parte del poder ejecutivo y por lo tanto, no podemos realizar el trámite de dicha identificación; lo único que hacemos verificar los documentos v enviarlos a autoridades las correspondientes".

Luego de haber realizado este proceso, lo que procede es lo siguiente:

Ingresar a la página del INE (http://www.ine.mx/ archivos2/portal/credencial/ extranjero/) para consular el proceso en que se encuentra la credencial. Este servicio permitirá estar en contacto para cualquier duda o aclaración.

De acuerdo con el INE, el documento para votar será enviado, en un plazo de tres a cuatro semanas, a la dirección que indique el solicitante en su comprobante de domicilio.

4. Por último, es importante activar la credencial. Una vez que se reciba es necesario activarla en el mismo sitio web del INE (http://www.ine.mx/ archivos2/portal/credencial/ extranjero/) para evitar un mal uso. Sólo se necesita el número de folio indicado en el recibo, la fecha de nacimiento y algunos datos que aparecen en la nueva credencial. De esta manera, el votante quedara incluido en la lista nominal de electores residentes en el extranjero para votar.

Una cosa importante que mencionó el Cónsul Juan Manuel Solana es que los mexicanos deben estar consientes que con este trámite van a perder su registro en México, "Si se registran en el extraniero. solamente van a poder votar en aquellas elecciones en que esté autorizado el voto en el extraniero en algunos estados y desde luego, en elecciones las presidenciales; pero si van a México y quieren votar como antes, no lo van a poder hacer"

Otro dato importante a destacar es que la credencial de elector no es aceptada en Estados Unidos para abrir cuentas bancarias. Es una identificación mexicana y un elemento indispensable para poder votar en México.

De acuerdo con el sitio web del INE, con esta credencial se podría votar en el 2016 para elegir al gobernador Aguascalientes, Oaxaca y Zacatecas. En el 2017 para Coahuila y en el 2018 para el gobernador de Chiapas, Guanajuato, Jalisco, Morelos y Puebla. Para el jefe de gobierno del Distrito Federal y en las elecciones de Yucatán. Tan pronto se acerquen las fechas de las elecciones, se darán a conocer los detalles.

El INE destacó que esta nueva opción para los connacionales se trata de un hecho histórico, ya que la credencial electoral sólo se podía tramitar en territorio mexicano. Este cambio busca incrementar la participación de los mexicanos en el exterior en los procesos electorales

Who's best for Latinos? Clinton, Sanders debate

By NANCY BENAC and LISA LERER, Associated Press

MIAMI, March 10, 2016 (AP): Fighting for Florida and beyond, Hillary Clinton and Bernie Sanders tangled in an intense debate over who's the true friend of "American Hispanics," trading accusations over guestworker programs "akin to slavery" and the embracing of "vigilantes" against immigrants.

They had even worse things to say about Republican front-runner Donald Trump.

Facing off Thursday evening, just six days before Florida gives its verdict on the presidential race, Clinton faulted Sanders for repeatedly voting against a 2007 comprehensive immigration reform bill; he faulted her for opposing a 2007 effort to let people who were in the country "illegally" obtain driver's licenses.

Had the immigration package passed back then, Clinton said, "a lot of the issues we are still discussing today would be in the rearview mirror."

Sanders retorted that he opposed the legislation because it included a guestworker program "akin to slavery." Numerous Latino organizations, including LULAC, opposed the legislation for this reason.

The debate opened with a question that appeared to startle Clinton Univision's Jorge Ramos asked her if she would drop out of the race if indicted over the handling of her email while secretary of state.

"Oh for goodness, that is not going to happen," Clinton declared. "I'm not even answering that question."

The FBI is investigating the possibility that Clinton mishandled sensitive information that passed through her private email server.

Sanders, as he has in the past, declined to bite on the issue, saying, "The process will take its course." He said he'd rather talk about the issues of wealth and income inequality.

Both candidates were bidding for momentum after Sanders surprised Clinton with an upset victory in Michigan on Tuesday.

Clinton stressed that she has a strong lead in the delegates, declaring, "This is a marathon, and it is a marathon that can only be carried by the kind of campaign I am running."

Sanders said his Michigan surprise was evidence that his message is resonating.

"We are going to continue to do extremely well," he said, adding that he expects to convince superdelegates who are backing Clinton to switch to his column.

Immigration commanded considerable attention for good reason: Florida is home to nearly 1.8 million Latinos, who make up about 15 percent of the state's Democrats.

Latino voters have made up about 10 percent of voters in the Democratic primaries so far this year, and Clinton has been getting about two-thirds of their votes to about one-third for Sanders. The Vermont senator stresses that he's making progress on winning over younger Hispanics.

Clinton at one point accused Sanders of supporting legislation that would have led to indefinite detention of people facing deportation, and for standing with Minutemen vigilantes. He called that notion "ridiculous" and "absurd," and accused Clinton of picking small pieces out of big legislative packages to distort his voting record.

"No, I do not support vigilantes and that is a horrific statement and an unfair statement to make," he said.

For all the disagreements, the overall tone of the candidates was considerably less tense than their Sunday faceoff. Sanders even paused at one point to make fun of his own pronunciation of "huge" as "yuge."

Both found agreement in pointing to GOP front-runner Trump as markedly worse on immigration than either of them.

Clinton mocked Trump's plan for a wall on the Mexican border, saying he'd build "the most beautiful tall wall, better than the great wall of China" to be "magically" paid for by Mexico. That, she said, is a fantasy.

Sanders said that in the immigration debate "we do not, as Donald Trump and others have done, resort to racism and xenophobia and bigotry."

There were any number of areas of agreement, including the need to reduce student loan debt. Sanders said he'd come up with a plan "many months before she did."

"Thanks for copying a very good idea," he said.

The candidates squared off soon after a testy debate in Michigan on Sunday in which they argued about trade and economic issues of particular interest in the industrial Midwest.

With Missouri, Illinois and Ohio among the states that voted on Tuesday, the candidates returned to a pointed matterthey'd already argued about three days earlier, scuffling over Sanders' vote against 2009 legislation that bailed out the auto industry, among others. Sanders said he opposed the bill

Comité para Honrar a César E. Chávez invita a participar en Actividades por la Justicia Social

Con el tema Educación se rendirá tributo a Kathleen N. Straus Se espera asistencia de alrededor de 2mil personas en marcha Por: Isabel Flores, Corresponsal La Prensa

Grand Rapids, MI: El Comité para Honrar a César E. Chávez invita a la gran celebración que se llevará a cabo el próximo jueves 17 de marzo [2016], con el tema: "Educación". En donde se dará la bienvenida a la nueva Alcaldesa Rosalynn Bliss y se rendirá tributo a Kathleen N. Straus.

Lupe Ramos-Montigny, Presidenta del Comité para Honrar a César E. Chávez, comentó: "Estoy muy entusiasmada, con bastante animo y mucha ayuda de diferentes grupos étnicos, y eso es muy importante porque el legado de Cesar no nos pertenece únicamente a los hispanos, sino a la historia de Estados Unidos. Por eso todas las comunidades deben celebrar la misión de César Chávez". Las actividades iniciarán a las 11:00am con la Marcha por la Justicia Social en la escuela The Potters House, ubicada en la esquina de la avenida Grandville y Van Raalte Dr. De ahí se caminará al norte de la Grandville hasta llegar a la iglesia The Edge Urban Fellowship.

La marcha será encabezada por la Alcaldesa Bliss y contará con la participación de estudiantes de diferentes escuelas que portaran sus uniformes y ayudarán con el control y orientación de los asistentes. "Lo que queremos es darles el liderazgo a los jóvenes dijo la entrevistada. "El año pasado tuvimos alrededor de mil participantes y este año con la presencia de los estudiantes, esperamos llegar a 2 mil". Una vez concluida la marcha en la iglesia The Edge Urgan Fellowship, se dará inicio a una reunión comunitaria en donde los estudiantes mostrarán sus habilidades de liderazgo y talento musical con presentaciones especiales. El coro de Grandville cantará el himno nacional.

Durante dicho evento se rendirá tributo especial a una mujer que ha dedicado su vida a la educación para todos los estudiantes del estado, la señora Kathleen N. Straus, quien actualmente es miembro de la Mesa Directiva Estatal de Educación. Fue elegida por primera vez para la mesa directiva en noviembre de 1992; se reeligió en 2000, y de nuevo en 2008, concluirá su último periodo en 2017. En todo ese tiempo, ella ha luchado contra la discriminación y ha trabajado para construir puentes entre las razas, grupos étnicos y religiosos, ha promovido la justicia social y la educación. Kathleen es un verdadero ejemplo de vida y legado del gran líder César E. Chávez: determinación, compromiso y justicia para todos

"Kathleen es de Detroit y está conmigo en la mesa directiva de educación. A sus alrededor de 93 años, es una mujer muy activa e inteligente, por eso para mí será un honor presentarla con los estudiantes y destacar que la educación es una cosa eterna. no se termina, es algo que siempre tenemos que seguir desarrollando porque es la puerta de las oportunidades", agregó Lupe Ramos.

Ramos aseguró que será una ceremonia muy emotiva, ya que todo dará inicio cuando Kathleen, un estudiante hispano y una señora afroamericana, enciendan una vela que es la luz de la sabiduría. Posteriormente se dará un espacio para que la Alcaldesa comparta unas palabras con la comunidad. Luego presentará a Kathleen, quien recibirá un retrato elaborado por Erick Picardo.

Además, en la iglesia The Edge acuden frecuentemente muchos ióvenes v se desarrolla un ambiente muy agradable para ellos, por lo que están seguros que habrá gran concurrencia. "Vamos

Wayne State gets $3.6 million to help minorities study science

DETROIT, March 9, 2016(AP): Wayne State University is getting $3.6 million to help support efforts to get more underrepresented minority students into science majors.

The Detroit school says a goal is to encourage more underrepresented students to pursue careers in academics and scientific research.

The National Institute of General Medical Sciences of the National Institutes of Health recently awarded a five-year grant for the Initiative for Maximizing Student Development. The program was established in 1978 with NIH support as the Minority Biomedical Research Support program.

Those involved say the program has made a positive impact, with graduation rates at 87 percent versus 21 percent for a comparison group of underrepresented minority students that weren't in the program but had similar high school grades and ACT scores.

Should I Refinance My Mortgage?

Mortgage rates have recently increased from historic lows, but they are still low enough to consider refinancing your mortgage loan. Refinancing may be a great option for you to lower your monthly mortgage payment. However, it's import to consider your financial goals and know exactly how much you will save before you do. Here are some important things

- How much will your monthly payment decrease? "This is one of the most common questions that I get asked," said Tasha Jacobs, Mortgage Lender at First Federal Bank. "The decrease in payment will depend on the term of the new loan, how much lower the new interest rate will be, the loan amount and if there is enough equity so that private mortgage insurance, often referred to as PMI, isn't required." When refinancing, you can evaluate your savings through different lengths of loans, for example, extending your mortgage to 30 years, keeping the current term or even shortening the term. Another important factor to keep in mind is any additional fees associated with refinancing. Although your monthly payment may be reduced, you will need to compare the closing costs to the monthly savings to ensure refinancing is to your benefit.
- How long will it take to recoup your closing costs and other fees? If you pay $2,000 in closing costs and you're going to save $200 on your monthly payment, you really won't recover your costs for about 10 months. But, that still may be worth it to you over the life of your loan.
- How much equity do you have in your home? The more equity you have, the easier it is to refinance your mortgage. And, in many instances, you'll be able to qualify for a conventional loan that will save you money in the long-run. The value of your home will be determined with a new appraisal. This will provide the current market value of your home and factor in any updates vou have completed.
- What is your credit score? Your credit score is always an important factor when it comes to financing. To view a free credit report, visit annualcreditreport.com or call 877-322-8228. You may be able to get a lower cost loan if you have "good credit" now, even if you didn't have it when you purchased your home a few years ago.

If you feel like now is the time to refinance your mortgage, you can set up a meeting with Tasha Jacobs at (419) 537-9312 or by email at tjacobs@first-fed.com to see if refinancing can benefit you.

The lectures are sponsored by The University of Toledo's College of Communication and the Arts and College of Natural Sciences and Mathematics, and The Toledo Museum of Art.

Friday, March 18, Smith will give a talk entitled "Disappearing Ink! Unraveling the Fading of a Modern Design Object." It will be held at 6 p.m. In the Toledo Museum of Art Little Theater. He examines a contemporary vase from the design collection that faded badly during its first year

Join us for this talk to learn the answer and investigate what's going on with Untitled #1176 (Elisabeth-Elizabeth), a contemporary work by artist Petah Covne in the Toledo Museum of Art's collection.

Saturday, March 19, Smith's talk will be "Goghing, Goghing, Gone! The Analysis of Color Fading in Masterpieces by Vincent Van Gogh." The lecture highlights a recent collaborative project investigating color fading in Vincent van Gogh's 1890 growth with Two Figures."

The artist's use of a modern fugitive dye, present as the pigment Geranium Lake, has resulted in significant color change in the picture and a shift in the aesthetics of the artwork. A brief history of the synthesis of eosin, and of its importance in artworks of the late 1800s will be given. A virtual restoration of Undergrowth using realistic colored layers determined by micro-colorimetry of cross-sections of the painting gives a better "impression" of this post-Impressionist's artistic efforts. Boricua Lindor busca seguir brillando con Indios

Por HAYDEN GROVE, Associated Press

GOODYEAR, Arizona, 11 III 16(AP): Bajo el sol radiante, el campocorto Francisco Lindor sonríe mientras espera su turno para participar en una práctica de fildeo, en la parte posterior del complejo de pretemporada de los Indios.

Al otro lado del cuadro, el manager Terry Francona batea una pelota, que sale rebotando sobre el césped. en dirección de Lindor, quien tuvo una campaña fantástica como novato.

Antes de llegar a la tierra de los senderos, la bola da un salto abrupto, hacia el rostro de Lindor. Con reflejos felinos, el boricua la captura, evitando el ficticio hit... y un golpe doloroso.

'Cuida tus labios", dice Francona, quien no se pierde la oportunidad de bromear con su joven pelotero.

Lindor ríe.

"Ya son suficientemente grandes", responde.

Más tarde. Lindor dice que este tipo de momentos definen su amor por este deporte.

Feds: 2 NY businessmen scammed $15M from US, state agencies

BUFFALO, NY, March 9, 2016 (AP): Federal prosecutors say two western New York business owners have been indicted for scamming more than $15 million from several government agencies and a program designed to aid minority-owned businesses.

The U.S. attorney's office in Buffalo says 64-yearold David Pfeiffer of Killbuck and 53-year-old Thomas Colton of Salamanca are charged with conspiracy to commit mail fraud and mail fraud. Pfeiffer was also charged with making a false statement to a financial institution.

Prosecutors say during a four-year period ending in 2013 the two men illegally obtained government construction contracts for three projects in the BuffaloNiagara region by defrauding state and federal agencies and the Disadvantaged Business Enterprise Pro-

1st Ohio police agencies adopt standards on deadly force

COLUMBUS, Ohio, March 11, 2016 (AP): The state says the first four Ohio law enforcement agencies have adopted new standards for use of deadly force by police.

The standards adopted last year permit police to use deadly force only when officers are defending themselves or other people from serious injury or death.

The agencies are the Medina, Coldwater, and Colerain police departments and the Montgomery County Sheriff's Office. The four departments also adopted first-ever standards for police recruiting and hiring, which set a goal of a qualified diverse workforce while providing equal employment opportunity.

The standards were created by Gov. John Kasich's Ohio Collaborative Community-Police Advisory Board after a series of fatal police shootings.

Ohio law enforcement agencies must adopt the standards as minimum department policies by next

Sanders, Trump win Michigan presidential primaries

By DAVID EGGERT, Associated Press

LANSING, March 9, 2016 mary, said Michigan voters "re-(AP): Republican Donald Trump and Democrat Bernie Sanders won in Michigan's presidential primaries on Tuesday—Sanders sending a big message in this industrial state that he is still viable in the 2016 race and Trump holding onto his front-runner status.

Trumpcomfortably defeated Ohio Gov. John Kasich and Texas Sen. Ted Cruz, who were in a close battle for second, and Florida Sen Marco Rubio who fell short of a 15 percent threshold to collect delegates.

Fifty-nine delegates—the third most in the GOP contest so far—will be divided proportionally among the Republicans. Trump—who led by 12 percentage points with 90 percent of precincts reporting—will win at least 21 Michigan delegates, Kasich at least 15 and Cruz at least 12. Clinton, the former secretary of state, and Sanders, a Vermont senator, were set to share 130 delegates—the second-largest haul so far—not including unbound superdelegates. Sanders had 50 percent of the vote to Clinton's 48 percent—a surprise after polls showed Clinton leading. Sanders will win at least 63 Michigan delegates and Clinton at least 52.

In a news conference at one of his Florida resorts, Trump predicted he would win Michigan in November's general election-something a Republican nominee has not done in 28 years.

Sanders, also speaking from Florida before next week's pripudiated" the polls and pundits. "What tonight means is that the Bernie Sanders campaign, the people's revolution, the political revolution, is strong in every part of the country. And, frankly, we believe our strongest areas are yet to happen," he said. Car salesman Rick Waddell,61,of Crystal Township in Montcalm County northeast of Grand Rapids, said he and his wife, Kaye, voted for Trump.

"We are so disappointed with the GOP establishment, and the same old, same old doesn't cut it," he said. "We need drastic action to reverse ourdownward spiral economi-

In recent days, the Democrats battled over trade deals and auto bailouts in the state that lost hundreds of thousands of manufacturing jobs in a pro-tracted, decade-long downturn. They also held a debate in Flint, where residents need fil-ters to use tap water because of lead contamination resulting from state regulatory failures.

Oriana Barnett, a stay-at-home mom from Ann Arbor, said she decided after Sunday's debate that she would support Sanders She cited his firm stance against fracking and Clinton's "more conservative" answers.
"I voted with my heart, not my head," she said

But her husband felt differ-ently.

"I voted with my head," said Josh Barnett, a retail buyer. "I want to win."

Among Republicans, who debated in Detroit, Kasich in particular put a heavy emphasis on Michigan. Claire and Mick Olinik of Traverse City made Kasich their choice. They said they believe he is fiscally responsible and smart—someone who would exercise good judgment and represent the nation well.

"I like the fact that he leans more conservative, but he's not a scary conservative," said Claire, a professional musi-cian and co-owner with her husband of a marketing business. "Of everybody still left in the race, frankly, he's the one that scares me least."

Clinton marked primary day with some stops at a bak-ery and coffeehouse in Detroit, where she was hoping to maintain the overwhelming support from black voters she has received elsewhere.

"I like what she stands for—trying to keep our money here in the United States," said Kisha Gibson, 43, a host at a Detroit casino. "She said that if you are taking jobs elsewhere, you need to pay a tax." Afterthis summer's national conventions, Michigan will be crucial to the Democratic nominee. Democrats have won the state six straight times dating back to 1992, and the general election has not been competitive since 2004.

Juanes acompaña a Rolling Stones en su debut en Colombia

Por NATALIA CANO

BOGOTA, Colombia, 11 III 16 (AP): Los Rolling Stones cumplieron el jueves la deuda que durante más de tres décadas tuvieron con sus seguidores en Colombia y debutaron en el país una noche de amigos en la que estuvieron acompañados de la estrella colombiana Juanes.

"Les tenemos una sorpresa de un parcero (amigo) que queremos mucho", anunció la legendaria banda británica en su cuenta oficial de Twiter al tiempo que el vocalista, Mick Jagger, recibía al músico natural de Medellín en el escenario del estadio El Campín de Bogotá.

Con su guitarra bajo el brazo y visiblemente emocionado, Juanes sumó su voz a la de Jagger para interpretar "Beast of Burden", del disco de 1978 "Some Girls", y con la que desataron la euforia entre las cerca de 40.000 personas que asistieron al concierto según cifras proporcionadas por la promotora OCESA.

Horas antes de su intervención en el concierto de los Stones, el ganador de 21 Grammys Latinos anunció a sus seguidores en Twitter que asistiría al concierto de "Sus Satánicas Majestades", a un que mantuvo en secreto que sería el invitado especial de la noche.

"Emocionado, porque

"Emocionado porque hoy voy a vera los Stones en Bogotá!!!", escribió el músico en su cuenta.

Juanes coreó a todo pulmón la canción que interpretó con Jagger y completó su actuación con un duelo de riffs entre él y guitarrista de los Stones, Keith Richards.

"íFantástico!", gritó Jagger al término de la intervención del compositor e intérprete de 43 años, a quien despidió del escenario con un abrazo.

La participación de Juanes fue bien recibida por los miles de asistentes, cuyo ánimo no decayó en ningún momento a pesar de la fuerte lluvia que azotó la capital colombiana horas antes del espectáculo, después de varios meses de sequía causada por el fenómeno de El Niño.

Entre los asistentes al concierto estuvieron los integrantes de Eagles Of Death Metal, el grupo estadounidense que tocaba en la sala Bataclan de París la noche de los atentados del 13 de noviembre, y que están en Bogotá para participar en la 7a edición del Festival Estéreo Picnic.

La gira "Olé", que marca el regreso de los Stones a Latinoamérica después de una década, comenzó el 3 de febrero en Santiago de Chile e incluyó paradas en Brasil, Argentina, Uruguay y Perú.

Tras su visita a Sudamérica, los Stones Ilegarán a México la próxima semana, donde tienen programados dos conciertos en el Foro Sol, el 14 y 17 de marzo.

Su gira por tendrá un histórico final cuando toquen por primera vez a Cuba el próximo 25 demarzo, un recital que según los propios Stones será un gran acontecimiento para ellos y sus admiradores en la isla.

Susan Sarandon: No he tomado clases de actuación

Por PEDRO MENDOZA, Associated Press

CARTAGENA, Colombia, 9 III 16 (AP): Susan Sarandon, invitada de honor del Festival Internacional de Cine de Cartagena de Indias, tiene una amplia trayectoria y un Oscar en su haber, pero nunca ha tomado una clase de actuación.

"Ni siquiera sé si hoy en día las llaman así, clases de actuación", dijo la actriz estadounidense, galardonada con el Premio de la Academia por su papel protagónico en "Dead Man Walking" ("Pena de muerte"), de 1995.

Al momento de prepararse para un proyecto cinematográfico "uno sigue su intuición", manifestó en un conversatorio en la 56ta edición del festival, que terminó el lunes.

"Para mí lo importante es saber quién está de pitcher y quién está de cátcher, qué es lo que quieren" los realizadores. "Y luego, cuando estás actuando con alguien y su te abres y realmente escuchas, ... el efecto puede ser sorprendente. Yo me he encontrado llorando en una escena que no esperaba que iba a conmoverme".

La estrella del clásico de culto "The Rocky Horror Picture Show" ("Orgía de horror y locura") y "The Witches of Eastwick" ("Las brujas de Eastwick") comparó su experiencia en el cine y el teatro, calificando este último como más complejo porque "en el cine solo tienes que conseguir hacerlo bien por un momento" mientras que en las tablas los espectadores "están viendo todo lo que haces".

Sarandon pasó cuatro días en estaciudad caribeña al norte de Colombia, donde participó en diferentes eventos del festival y recibió la estatuilla de la India Catalina en reconocimiento a sus más de cuatro décadas de trayectoria artística.

Se refirió además a la falta de diversidad y el sexismo en Hollywood.

"La manera de cambiar el sexismo en Hollywood no pasa por arrojar estadísticas de cuántos papeles le dan a las mujeres, pasa por la diversidad de ideas. A Hollywood le falta imaginación", dijo la actriz. Hay que dejar de pensar en los médicos como hombres blancos y en las prostitutas como mujeres negras, agregó. "Tenemos que empezar a pensar en cómo funciona el mundo en la realidad".

En entrevista con la AP, la también activista y defensora de los derechos humanos expresó su opinión sobre las elecciones presidenciales en Estados Unidos

Dijo que la gente constantemente vota en contra de sus propios intereses porque "no están educados adecuadamente y culpo a la prensa por ello, porque pensaron que Donald Trump era tan divertido que siguieron con Donald Trump e ignoraron a Bernie Sanders".

También dijo que tiene esperanza en el proceso de paz que actualmente desarrolla Colombia con el grupo insurgente de las FARC en La Habana, Cuba.

"Entiendo que es un proceso difícil que implicarácierta cantidad confianza y cierta cantidad de compromiso para poder llegar a un punto en el cual la gente sea capaz de vivir con cualquiera que sea la solución", dijo en este sentido.

Sarandon ha sido postulada al Premio de la Academia por "The Client" ("El cliente"), "Lorenzo's Oil" ("Un milagro para Lorenzo"), "Thelma & Louise" y "Atlantic City", además de "Dead Man Walking". Sus créditos en el teatro incluyen "Exit The King" y "An Evening With Richard Nixon and ...", en en Broadway.

TOLEDO, March 6, 2016: Congresswoman Marcy Kaptur announced today that Josh Trout, a student at Perkins High School, is the Ohio 9th Congressional District overall winner of the 2016 Congressional Arts Competition, "An Artistic Discov-Representative Kaptur made the announcement at an awards ceremony Sunday afternoon.

A six-member panel of judges recognized Josh for his original work titled "Still Life," which will hang in the U.S. Capitol for the coming year. A reception will also be held this summer for Josh and other Congressional Art Competition winners in the Capitol Visitors Center in Washington D.C. The winner and a guest will have the opportunity to receive round-trip tickets, courtesy of Southwest Airlines, to attend the reception.

"The student artwork we received this year showed great skill and creativity from many young artists throughout the region, and I commend each of our participants for their creativity and initiative." said Congresswoman Kaptur. "Josh's work stood out even among the many compelling and award-winning pieces we reviewed and I look forward to visiting it at its home in the Capitol during the next year.'

In addition to the competition winner, students from Bowsher High School, Central High School, Lakewood High School, Maumee Valley Country Day School, Notre Dame Academy, Oak Harbor High School, Perkins High School, Rogers High School, Sandusky High School, Toledo School for the Arts, Whitmer High School, and Woodward High School were also presented with awards recognizing their work.

In downtown Toledo, the artwork is being shown through March 11th at the first floor of the Fifth Third Center, One SeaGate. The artwork will also be shown in the Berea, Ohio from March 21 through April 15th and be recognized at an awards ceremony on April 10, 2016, 10 a.m. to noon, at Baldwin Wallace University, Center for Innovation and Growth, 340 Front Street.

The Congressional Art Competition is a nationwide competition sponsored by the U.S. House of high school students.

located in Angangueo, Michoacan, Mexico, Data shows that the recovered tags were from seven males and two females that were released on Zoo grounds between August 30 and September 7, 2015. The recovery of these tags means that at least those nine butterflies completed the entire journey from Toledo to Mexico, which if one were to walk the believed route would take almost 700 hours!

As Wild Toledo coordinator, Ryan Walsh, hypothesizes, finding these nine tags together in an area probably means that the monarchs stayed together throughout the migration and that a lot more actually made it but were it is still early in the typical recovery period, so more tags may be located.

Tag recovery rates vary year to year but are typically quite low due to the incredible density of monarchs in the protected land and the small groups of locals and eco-tourists collecting the tags. Reports and pictures from the area show huge Cozumel fir trees completely covered in butterflies with branches drooping from the weight of the humongous monarch colonies.

In 2014, the Zoo released 280 tagged monarchs and no tags were recovered. In 2015, 760 monarchs were tagged and released, meaning 1 in approximately every 85 butterflies were recovered. That is an incredible increase from when tagging began and only 1 in 1,000 tags were recovered! Walsh chuckled: "We're not sure exactly why we had such a good year, but that doesn't take away from how incredible it is to have these tags recovered."

All monarch butterflies reared at the Toledo Zoo are raised from eggs collected in the native prairies on Zoo grounds and feed on milkweed grown from seed inside the greenhouse to control the possibility of disease.

Before release, each monarch butterfly is tagged by hand with a small sticker indicating an individual identification number from Monarch Watch, a dedicated group of students, scientists and citizen scientists committed to the conservation of the iconic butterfly spe-

Each tag displays three letters and three numbers along with an email address to report the finding. Each identification number corresponds to a record entered into the database that contains information such as sex, captive or wildreared and the release date. Once recovered, tag numbers are recorded and the results released online so contributing institutions may track their own progress.

The increase in monarchs being reared in the greenhouse at the Toledo Zoo is thanks in part to the Zoo PAL (Proud Animal Lover) sponsorship program that enables the public to symbolically adopt a monarch for a nominal fee. Walsh assures that he is emailing the "monarch parents" from 2015 to relay this exciting news and that the Zoo is already preparing for another release this summer. "We will definitely do it again. We are very excited and encouraged by our results and can't wait to continue sharing this incredible natural wonder!'

School awarded for language immersion program

By ROB EARNSHAW, The Times

VALPARAISO, Ind., like what Valparaiso is work-March 7, 2016 (AP): Elementary School kindergartners are getting a lesson in Spanish thanks to legislation that created a Dual Language Immersion pilot program

Parkview was one of five Indiana schools in the state awarded the grant.

"Our kindergarten students are making outstanding progress," Parkview Principal Anne Wodetzki said. "There is so much you can learn from a dual language program. It's not only language, it's about culture and diversity. What a gift in today's global so-

The Department of Education awarded a total of $422,532 in grants, which were funded by the state during the 2015 legislative session. They provide funds to school corporations that establish dual language immersion programs in Mandarin, Spanish, French or any other language approved by the Indiana Department of Education.

Parkview received $82,817, which covers planning, instructional materials-chosen by the school—staff development training and to hire an additional faculty member, if needed, to run the program or to take over duties of a current teacher instructing the language class.

"Programs like this are exceptionally beneficial to students as they provide students with the opportunity to acquire language skills at a young age," said Indiana Department of Education spokeswoman Samantha Hart. "In a twoway immersion program

ing toward, both native English-speaking children and English learner students benefit from having instruction in their home language as well as another that will lead them toward multilingual proficiency as young adults

Parkview kindergarten teacher Kristin Nguyen is teaching the Spanish program. She said they are using a lot of gestures, visuals and repetition in the class.

"We're teaching the math standards in Spanish," she Nguyen, a native Spanish speaker, said students will learn concepts, shapes and numbers and will know the days of the week in Spanish. She said students have picked the language up quickly and have not been overwhelmed.

Parkview has to re-apply for the grant next year, and the school may accept interested inter-transfer students from other Valpo elementary schools.

Wodetzki said she would like to expand the program by one grade every year, eventually offering it to all elementary grades. She said there are other teachers at Parkview who speak Spanish, so the program could expand for a couple of years with staff

If interest in the program continues, school officials would need to look to hire Spanish-speaking teachers as others retire. Transferring teachers to Parkview from other schools in the future is also a possibility to allow the program to expand.

One reason Nguyen believes Parkview was selected for the grant is because she speaks Spanish. There is a shortage of foreign language teachers in the state a topic Superintendent E. Ric Frataccia brought up at a School Board meeting in Indiana has seen more than a 30 percent decline overall in the number of people entering its schools of education, and a similar decline over the last six years in the number of people receiving initial practitioner teaching licenses, according to Hart.

"This teacher shortage impacts all areas of our state and every curriculum area," she said, "though some have seen a greater decline than others.

Wodetzki said there is a shortage of foreign-language teachers, but they are working with other grant recipient schools coordinate efforts to attract more qualified teachers from both the United States and abroad.

Hart said to address the teacher shortage, state schools Superintendent Glenda Ritz created a Blue Ribbon Commission made up of educators and other education stakeholders, to develop strategies to recruit and retain educators in classrooms

"Superintendent Ritz is committed to implementing the strategies that do not require legislative action and will continue to work with the Legislature to develop legislation to put into law those recommendations that do require legislative action," she said.

Boricua Lindor busca seguir brillando con Indios

En 99 juegos después de que se le ascendió de las menores, el torpedero de 22 años bateó para .313, con 12 jonrones y 51 impulsadas. Añadió 12 robos y bateó para .361 con 78 hits después del 4 de agosto. Esa cifra de imparables fue la más destacada en las mayores durante ese lapso.

Asimismo, Lindor realizó varias jugadas asombrosas con el guante, y lo hizo todo con una combinación de entusiasmo iuvenil v una madurez difícil de creer a su edad.

Finalizó segundo en la votación para el Novato del Año en la Liga Americana, sólo detrás de su coterráneo Carlos Correa, de Houston, quien debe agradecer que Lindor no jugó la temporada completa.

"Uno sí olvida a veces su edad", dijo el intermedista de Cleveland, Jason Kipnis.

Lindor cree que esta dualidad entre un niño divertido y un hombre trabajador es una herencia de sus padres.

"La familia de mi mamá es muy alegre", comentó Lindor, la octava selección general del draft de 2011. "Del lado de mi papá, todos son más decididos a alcanzar sus metas".

Y ese equilibrio ha permitido que Lindor muestre su talento Muchos lo

Francona, quien ha estado cerca de grandes peloteros durante una vida dedicada al béisbol, normalmente se cuida para no elogiar demasiado a los jóvenes. Pero asevera que Lindor tiene potencial para llegar al Salón de la Fama.

"No hay nada que él no pueda hacer", indicó Francona. "Batea como ambidiestro, tiene velocidad, saca la pelota del parque, juega muy bien a la defensiva y es un chico muy inteligente. Es un paquete muy bueno. Lo tiene. Sabemos que es un buen jugador y probablemente terminará siendo uno de los grandes, ojalá".

El camino de Lindor hacia las Grandes Ligas no fue tan terso como la forma en que acomete por un roletazo antes de lanzar una bala a la primera base.

Cuando tenía 12 años, se mudó de Puerto Rico a Florida, donde asistió a la Academia Monteverde, una escuela privada donde también residió.

Había pasado toda la vida con sus padres, y se topó con un mundo nuevo.

"Fue duro, porque vo era joven", dijo Lindor. 'No tenía a mi mamá cerca, ni a mi papá. Tuve que confiar en mis maestros y en mis compañeros de equipo y de clase".

Solo, aprendió a aceptar la responsabilidad por sus errores, a administrar su tiempo y a integrarse con un nuevo grupo de amigos, todo ello mientras aprendía el inglés.

En retrospectiva, siente que esos momentos duros lo prepararon para la vida en las mayores.

"Tuve que sobrevivir por mi cuenta", relató. "Eso me ayudó a ser mejor persona, a ser un joven que trabajaba bien duro".

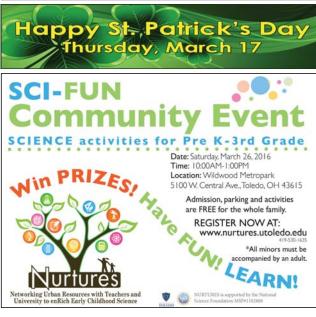

Lindor aprovechó muchas de esas lecciones como novato, y no tiene la intención de aflojar el paso.

Para él, llegar a las Grandes Ligas no es suficiente.

"Tengo miedo de no tener éxito", aseguró. "Tengo miedo de que mi familia no esté orgullosa de mí. Por eso trabajo lo más duro que puedo. Si dedico el tiempo y el trabajo, a largo plazo tengo que ser exitoso, voy a serlo".

En momentos en que se prepara para su segunda temporada, Lindor no da nada por descontado. Francona lo contempla como campocorto titular, pero el boricua considera esta pretemporada tan importante como la ante-

BGSU to host Annual Latino Issues Conference

By Kevin Milliken, La Prensa Correspondent

Bowling Green State University will host its annual Latino Issues Conference ("Encuentro Latinoamericano") on Thursday, March 24, 2016, in the Bowen Thompson Student Union, The all-day conference will feature pre-sentations by BGSU stu-dents and faculty on a variety of topics, including poli-tics, history, education, and the arts.

The noon luncheon will feature a keynote speech and reading by Jennine Canó Crucet, author of Make Your Home Among Strangers, which is nominated for the Center for Fic-tion First Novel Prize. The novel tells the story of a first-generation college student moving between her largely Cuban-American home in Miami, Florida and her new life at a predomi-nantly white, ultra-elite liberal arts college where she secretly applied, infuriat-ing her recently-divorced parents.

A 2009 collection of short stories, How to Leave Hialeah, won the Iowa Short Fiction Prize, the John Gardener Book Award, and the Devil's Kitchen Read-ing Award. The assistant professor of English and ethnic studies at the University of Nebraska is also an O. Henry Prize recipient and a Bread Loaf Fellow.

The writings of Ms. Capó Crucet have appeared in Guernica, Ploughshares, Epoch, The Rumpus, Prai-rie Schooner, and other publications. During the 2013-14 academic year, she was the Picador Guest Professor at the Institute for American Studies at the University of Leipzig, Germany.

There will be a panel discussion on "Latino/a Politics in 2016," featuring Lilleana Cavanaugh, executive director, Ohio Latino Affairs Commission (OCHLA); Beatriz Maya, managing director, La Conexión de Wood County; Guisselle County; Guisselle Mendoza, executive director, Adelante; and

Dr. Nicole KalafHughes, Department of Political Science, BGSU.

Some of the late morn-ing presentations will focus on "U.S. Transnational Poli-tics," which will be moderated by Francisco Cabanillas. Topics will in-clude Cuban Liberation through Adult Literacy by Rebecca Julia Beyer, the Latino Student Union Sitin at BGSU, May 7, 1980 by Roxann Brown, and Guantanamo Bay: U.S. presence's effects on Cuba by Emily K. Gunner.

A midafternoon session will cover the topic of "U.S. Latinas and Education.' The bilingual presentations will be moderated by Cindy Ducar and feature topics such as A Latino Experience in Northwest Ohio by Jacqueline Campbell, Alycia Buenger, and Mayra López; ¿Sin documentos, pero sin capital? The influence of social capital on Latin American children's educational achievement in the American Southwest by Diana Pitcher; and Educational Aspirations, Expectations and Subsequent Educational Attainment: Second Generation Cuban. Mexican, and Filipino Immigrants by Baumgardner. Marisa

The conference's featured presentation begins at 5:30 p.m.: at 5:30 p.m.: "VidaMuertos: Immigration Policy and Genre Filmmaking" with Prof. Thomas
Javier Castillo and his collaborators. The final pre-sentation will be followed at 6 p.m. by a Latino mixer hosted by the BGSU Latino Student Union (LSU). The Latino Issues Conference is sponsored by the BGSU School of Cultural and Critical Studies.

Cuban Sojourn:

Guban Sojourn:

BGSU Group to travel to Cuba in May

Meantime, some BGSU
students and faculty will visit Havana, Cuba, immediately, offer the pand of diately after the end of classes in May for a rare look at a culture previously closed to most U.S. citizens and one that is experienc-ing huge social change.

The Cuba trip involves members of La Comunidad learning community, a Spanish-speaking livinglearning residential com-munity created to encourage students in their Span-ish communication outside classroom. Comunidad members are from a variety of majors, but share a common inter-est in Spanish language and Hispanic culture. The group also provides outlets for networking and friendship among its membership of students and professors.

To prepare for the Cuba trip, the BGSU students are meeting regularly with trip leaders. Three BGSU professors are chaperoning the summertime learn ing experience: Dr. Susana Peña, director of the School of Cultural and Critical Studies and an ethnic studies faculty member; Pedro Porbén, romance and classical studies (Spanish); and Carmen Alvarez, director of La Comunidad and a romance and classical studies faculty member, also in Spanish.

Dr. Peña and Porbén, both Cuban, have been attending some of Alvarez's weekly classes to familiarize students with the culture, food, history and tra-ditions of Cuba. This will be their third time leading students on trips to Ha-vana, but their first with freshmen and sophomores Porbén has even been call ing upon family and friends in Havana to help organize the experience.

There have been film nights and two Cuban dinners, giving all stu-dents, not only those who are going to Havana, in sight into a new culture.

"It's a learning experi-ence for me, too," Alvarez said. "I've never been to Cuba. But this will not be a 'touristy' trip. We'll visit some museums but we'll also visit with academics and social entrepreneurs

Raising Latino graduation rates needs a comprehensive strategy

By Kevin Milliken, La Prensa Correspondent

TOLEDO: Ohio's Latino leaders laid out their viewpoints on the formula for successful Latino students during the annual statewide Latino Education Summit held Friday, March 11, 2016 at The University of Toledo More than 230 educators and Latino leaders attended the day-long event.

Bob Vásquez, president of the Toledo Public Schools (TPS) board of education and Toledo Zoo's director of external affairs, addressed the summit on the state of Latino education in Ohio. He told the audience there were more than 75,000 Latino students enrolled in the state school system during the 2013-14 academic vear, just under five percent of Ohio's school population, expected to grow significantly in coming years.

"The future of education for Latino students, in my mind, is not all that clear especially in Ohio," said Vásquez. "We know from the projections, the appearance of students will change. We would hope that the appearance of teachers and administrators would change as well. My experience tells me that it's not necessarily so, at least not in Ohio."

Vásquez called education "the great equalizer," but acknowledged the existing achievement gap of Latino students compared to their counterparts. He also noted the continuation of high dropout rates and low graduation rates among the Latino population in Ohio.

The TPS board of education president stated the most important problem he sees in education—and one he acknowledged TPS has been unable to solve and affects Latino students and families greatly-is family engagement with individual school buildings.

"Those students who have the support of their families turn out to be the most academically successful students," he said, "In my opinion, the values that the family has regarding education are what the student will absorb. That means there are efforts that we, in the educational system, have to make and work on, as individuals and organizations that we have in getting the students prepared and the families to support them.

The TPS board of education president laid out what he saw as the prescription for closing the achievement gap, both short-term and longterm, for Latinos in Ohio.

"For the kids in our school system, we have to be more welcoming right from the first contact and maintain that positive ex-perience for the family throughout. In addition, teachers and administrators must be culturally competent. That is part of providing that positive experience," Vásquez said. "Yet we must encourage Hispanics to become teachers, prin-cipals, and superintendents and board members. In Ohio, I don't see a lot of Hispanic (school) board members.

But we can't wait for that to happen. We have to make all educators understand that they have the responsibility, no matter their race or ethnicity, to be culturally competent and to ow what that really means.

Part of that battle, he stated, involves making sure educa-tors don't have "low expecta-tions" for the academic performance of Latino students. At the same time, students need to know it will take hard work to achieve a higher plane of academic performance. Vásquez challenged the audience to make that happen "with a sense of urgency.

"We must demand academic excellence and instill in our children that they have the ability to succeed," he said. "We must set the bar high. We cannot allow others, through their bias or through their prejudices, to set that bar for us.

Vásquez also asked the audience to help him find a way to improve parent engagement with school systems. He openly admitted he didn't know the solution to reaching Latino families, let alone all families.

"There is no one resource we can use to our advantage more to make Latino students succeed," he noted. "It's the family. It's in our heritage It's in our culture. We need to use it.'

Keynote speaker, Dr. Lonny Rivera

Dr. Lonny Rivera, interim state schools superintendent, delivered an inspiring keynote address from his heart after lunch. The former Toledo Public Schools (TPS) educator, principal and administrator and Oregon Schools superintendent is the first Latino to ever ascend to that office.

"Because I was an athlete, I was a wrestler; it opened up doors for me. I got exposed to a world I didn't have access to and it's very humbling," said Dr. Rivera, whose parents were migrant farmworkers like many Latino families who first settle in Northwest Ohio.

Dr. Rivera talked of the ethics instilled in him by his father and the limitations of his childhood, barriers he overcame through hard work and the support of family.

"The people in the neighborhood where we grew up were the plumbers and the pipefitters and the welders, the ones who had the trades and skills—those were the ones we had access to," recalled Dr. Rivera. "Because anybody who had a college degree or was college-educated, we didn't have access to folks like that. We only knew the world around us.

As a result, he had no aspira tions to attend college beyond graduation.

"High school was hard for me," Dr. Rivera admitted, at least until he discovered machining and the fact he could learn a hands-on skill that paid good money while in high school. He enrolled in the program his junior year. "I started to learn why it was important to learn that. Up until that point, I didn't understand why I was sitting in class, learning what I was learning."

A career-technology teacher put a piece of metal in front of him and gave instructions on what to do. Rivera the student suddenly realized he had to take complex measurements and understood why trigonometry was important to learn.

"I had no idea—and it was fun, and I was doing a great job at it," he said. "There's a misnomer that's out there in our society that if you're involved in vocational training or education, that somehow it's less. I can tell you I had my first 3.0 grade point average of my life my first quarter of college. The level of complexity of the work in the trades and in our vocational training is secondto-none.

Dr Riveratoldthe students in the audience to not discount career-tech prep pro-grams "as a safety net," be-cause it can give them "something to fall back on" if college doesn't work out. "Don't diminish that. Some of the jobs in our area, they're looking for skilled trades, skilled labor people that can be trained. They'll put the money and investments in he said. "I think we need to tell our young people that's something that you can do But listen to this: it doesn't stop you from going to college if you want to go all the way to the top. You can make it."

The interim state schools superintendent called it almost accidental that he became Ohio's top educator earlier this year after he took a job as the associate state superintendent in 2015, leaving the top post at Or-egon Schools behind in the process.

"It was not my intention to sit in this seat at the top. But it has been an eye-opening experience for me," said Dr. Rivera. "For all the things we do at the higher levels of government or education, for all those good things, the magic happens right there in those seats.

Dr. Rivera told a story of how he took over a Toledo Public Schools building at the age of 26 with "teachers who had been doing it longer than I was alive." The former Sherman Elementary School principal told the audience he quickly realized it would not be him who would transform the one of the region's poorest-performing buildings, but the team he assembled as educators.

"We had people transferring from some of the highestperforming buildings in the city to our building because of the culture we created," he recalled. "I say that because the sphere of influence you create (as educators) is the biggest difference anyone can make.

Dr. Riverahad received a fullride wrestling scholarship offer to Michigan State University, but didn't qualify academically. A University of Toledo wrestling coach picked up him and his dad and helped him enroll in classes, with the promise of a scholarship if he improved his grades.

"That man kept his word.
It changed my life," he said.
"This was a man who came out of his way to rescue some-one like me. But you might get put in a situation where you can affect one life, one kid. Youneverknow the blessing that you have. Don't underestimate that.'

Dr. Cassandra Storlie, a Kent State University re-searcher, provided a preview of best practices featured at the summit during the open-ing breakfast session. She noted her research shows three main factors in improving academic performance among Latino students: pride in eth-nic identity, school connection, and family engagement She called them "directly related" to college and career readiness

"Schools that demonstrate that students who engage in a deeper learning, particularly about jobs and careers that interest them are more moti-vated and take ownership of their education, which know results in higher performance and higher graduation rates," she said. "We also know that, by 2018, 63 percent of all U.S job openings will require at least some college coursework. So it's our responsibility to close this gap for Latino youth because they are our future."

Lilleana Cavanaugh, ex-ecutive director of the Ohio Commission on Hispanic Latino Affairs (OCHLA), introduced three Ohio organizations and agencies recog-nized by the White House for improving the educational achievement of Latino stu-dents. Those included mentoring and scholarship programs at Cleveland-based Esperanza, Inc., Springfield City Schools for investing $750,000 in a range of services to better serve Latino families, and the L.A.S.E.R. mentorship program at The Ohio State University. The six Northwest Ohio ominees for the OCHLA Education Advocate Award—Sabina Elizondo-Serratos, José Luna, Andrea de la Roca, Lisa Canales, Baldemar Velásquez, and Margarita De León were recognized during the summit Ms. De León was selected to receive the award based on her work in establishing the Diamante Awards and scholarship program and UT's an nual Latino Youth Summit.

Over the past 20 years, the Hispanic Leadership Conference has addressed the most concerning topics impacting the Hispanic community, and this year is no different. We are determined to provide information/resources to everyone working for parity within our community. As we face tor patry within our community. As we lace a critical election year, we address the Hispanic vote and its impact on America's future. We address the effects of non-participation while also registering people to vote. Our Medical Corner in partnership with Mercy provides medical advice, health and decreasing screens to all attending. As and depression screens to all attending. Are and depression screens to all attending. Are you looking for workplace empowerment? Do we value Latina leadership/ empowerment? How do Ohio's gun laws affect our safety? Or maybe you're interested in Latin cooking with health focused options. How does DAPA and DAPA affect the migrant community? How do we insure these options remain available? Are our rights being violated in the courtroom as it pertains to the use of interpreters? How do we help our formerly incarcerated transition back to the incarcerated transition back to the community? This year's conference has all of these things and is the first in 20 years, operating under new leadership. The operating under new leadership. The foundation has been paved, a smooth transition facilitated and the legacy continues. Please join us as we continue to "open doors" and "bridge the gaps" that affect us all.

Note: Carmen Leibas and Alisha Pardon are the new coordinators for the 2016 conference. With guidance from conference predecessors Dina and Mike Ferrer, and collaboration with C.H.I.P. members and sponsors, we thank everyone for their support of this year's conference.

Hispanic Businesses get special Chamber of Commerce offer

By Kevin Milliken, La Prensa Correspondent

The Toledo Regional Chamber of Commerce is offering an introductory membership offer to small Latino-owned businesses with fewer than ten employees

Northwest Ohio's largest chamber of commerce, with over 1,800 members, is trying to sign up new business members to its network for a fee of $75 for the first year.

"As part of our new strategic plan that we put together this past year, we're really looking at increasing diversity in our membership and the leadership of our organization," said Wendy Gramza, chamber president/CEO. "Certainly, the Hispanic community, being one of the fastest growing population segments in our country, we felt it was appropriate to try and make our services available to Hispanic-owned businesses. This is an attempt to make sure [Latino] businesses have access to our organization."

The Toledo chamber touts itself as a staff of 20, with three lobbyists and the only business PAC in the region with access to ensure their voices are heard by local and state elected officials. The chamber has four Small Business Development Center (SBDC) consultants, including certified public accountants and lawyers to help small businesses meet opportunities and challenges

"Membership is not required to access our consulting services," said Ms. Gramza. "Any minorityowned business, any Hispanic-owned business, any small business, anyone thinking about starting a small business has access to those services and there is no charge for that. If they're contemplating starting a business, already in business looking to grow, looking for additional financing, looking for additional marketing strategies, they should absolutely call our chamber and get connected. It's no-cost, confidential, one-on-one service.

The chamber promotes group buying power through savings on natural gas and electric service, health insurance, workers compensation costs, and office supplies

"These products and services that are part of our organization are available to any small business, as they always have been," said Ms. Gramza. "We're just reaching out particularly to that market segment with a special offer, specifically so they can benefit from our Chamber Energy Solutions, which they don't have access through any other organization.

The Chamber Energy Solutions energy savings program, according to Gramza, uses the strength of group buying to help businesses manage electric and natural gas costs through a bulk discount. Independent energy professionals help chamber members lock in a better electric rate or get the best price possible for natural gas

The chamber also promotes business and networking opportunities through its annual meeting, clambake, golf outing, FOCUS on business luncheon, Coffee and Connecting series, and other

To qualify for the offer, Latino-owned businesses must not already be enrolled in the chamber as a member and qualify for and enroll in the Chamber Energy Solu-

"We want to integrate the students into the Cu-ban community," Dr. Peña said. "They'll be staying with Cuban families and do a lot of walking tours to see buildings from before and after the revolution."

Dr. Peña also pointed out you don't have to walk far beyond the perimeter of areas newly upgraded for foreign visitors to see how ordinary Cubans live and the challenges that are faced by Cuban society.

"We'll be investing a lot of time in community projects," Porbén said.
"Cuban society has been changing since 2012. We are finding community-based, grassroots projects for the students to participate in.

Sophomore Pearson, a visual communication and technology education major, stated she studied in BGSU's program in Alcalá de Henares, Spain, last year and is eager to "expand my knowledge of other cultures even more. I love old traditions like those in Cuba and respect that and I'm looking forward to seeing it up close."

The students will make reflective videos through-out and after their trip, which will be uploaded to the BGSU home page this summer so their experi-ences can be shared with other students.

UMS está orgulloso de traer de vuelta el Mariachi Vargas de Tecalitlán después de sus actuaciones muy populares en 2010 y 2013. Ningún otro mariachi en la historia ha tenido una trayectoria o influencia remotamente comparable a este grupo, que es ampliamente considerado el mejor mariachi del mundo.

Fundada en una pequeña ciudad cerca de Jalisco por Don Gaspar Vargas en la década de 1890, esta banda básicamente inventó el mariachi moderno. Con vocalistas de clase mundial e instrumentistas, el trabajo conjunto impecable, un gusto impecable en el repertorio y talento para el espectáculo fascinante, el grupo nunca deja de participar a su público, provocando gritos espontáneos, cantan a coro, y una ovación tras otra con sus voces y desgarradoras sus instrumentales virtuosuos.

Maestros en fusionar el estilo del viejo mundo de la música mariachi con piezas nuevas, innovadoras, el Mariachi Vargas apela a las audiencias a través de todas las generaciones.
