Gobernador de Florida: Reforma migratoria sería benéfica

Por BRENDAN FARRINGTON

TALLAHASSEE, el 13 de mayo del 2010 (AP): Una reforma de inmigración que abra el camino para que los indocumentados obtengan la ciudadanía ayudaría a la solvencia del sistema de Seguridad Social, consideró el jueves el gobernador de Florida, Charlie Crist, candidato independiente al Senado federal.

Crist está a favor de apuntalar la Seguridad Social a través de una reforma de inmigración, en vez de la propuesta de su oponente, el cubano-estadounidense Marco Rubio, quien quiere elevar la edad a la que pueden recibir las prestaciones del sistema.

Crist le dijo a The Associated Press que hay hasta 14 millones de inmigrantes indocumentados que forman una economía subterránea. Si aportaran al sistema de Seguridad Social, se podría aumentar la cantidad de trabajadores en relación con la cantidad de retirados que reciben beneficios.

"Es algo que ciertamente vale un muy buen debate e investigación", dijo Crist. "Si hay gente aquí que no está aportando al sistema, algo en lo que todos estamos de acuerdo, esto es básicamente una forma de fraude contra el sistema".

Su idea sería darle a los inmigrantes un camino a la legalización similar al que ofrecía la reforma migratoria fallida que impulsaron el ex presidente George W. Bush, el ex senador Mel Martínez y el senador John McCain.

Crist dijo que no está a favor de una amnistía, sino de un "camino ganado a la ciudadanía", en que los inmigrantes indocumentados tendrían que postularse a ese beneficio y se sumarían a la lista de gente que ya inició su proceso.

El gobernador era precandidato republicano hasta que decidió postularse como independiente el mes pasado, cuando las encuestas lo mostraban perdedor de las internas ante Rubio, preferido por el movimiento conservador Tea Party.

Rubio consideró el jueves que la idea de Crist sobre la inmigración es poco realista.

"El plan de Charlie Crist no sólo otorgaría una amnistía, sino que significaría la quiebra de la Seguridad Social para jubilados actuales y futuros", dijo.

Rubio propuso elevar la edad mínima para recibir beneficios sociales para la gente que hoy tiene menos de 55 años. También quiere volver a calcular la fórmula de aumento de los beneficios, para que tenga en cuenta la inflación.

"No podría apoyar ninguna de esas (ideas) y creo que tenemos que ser más innovadores", dijo Crist. "No quiero castigar a nadie por arreglarlo".

El favorito en las internas demócratas Kendrick Meek también se opone a elevar la edad mínima.

Crist hizo sus declaraciones luego que Rubio dijo apoyar la polémica ley migratoria de Arizona que manda a los policías municipales y estatales interrogar a las personas sobre su estatus migratorio si hay razón para sospechar que puedan ser indocumentadas. Rubio se había opuesto a la ley, pero cambió de opinión cuando la Legislatura de Arizona modificó el texto para prohibir que los policías se basen en la raza de las personas al decidir interrogarlas.

Los republicanos han perdido el apoyo de votantes hispanos durante el debate migratorio, por lo que Crist podría estar intentando cautivar a la numerosa población de herencia latina de su estado.

Genetic study shows diversity, ancestry of Latino populations, Cornell researcher says

ITHACA, NY, May 17, 2010: Being Latino in the Americas can mean very different things — depending upon where your ancestors called home, a new study led by a Cornell researcher shows.

The new study shows that populations geographically close to former slave trade routes and ports have more African ancestry than more inland Latin Americans, who show more Native American heritage.

The terms Hispanic and Latino "encompasses a huge amount of genetic diversity," says Katarzyna Bryc, a graduate student in biological statistics and computational biology and co-lead author of the study with New York University medical student Christopher Vélez. "The study reveals unique patterns of ancestry across these populations."

"These Latino populations tell us about the complexity of migration events involved in the histories of Hispanics/Latinos," Bryc says.

The study includes genetic samples from 112 people from Mexico plus 100 individuals from Ecuador, Colombia, the Dominican Republic, and Puerto Rico. The analysis shows that individuals from the Dominican Republic, Puerto Rico, and Colombia have more African ancestry, reflecting migrations along the historical slave-trade routes. In contrast, Mexicans and Ecuadorians have more Native American ancestry.

Researchers also found that the Native American segments of genomes of North American Latinos — those from México, Puerto Rico and Dominican Republic — are genetically more similar to those of the Nahua people indigenous of México and Central America, while the Native American segments of genomes of South American populations — those from Colombia and Ecuador — were most similar to those of the Quechua people.

The findings also have implications for medicine, where knowledge of ancestries may reveal tendencies toward chronic inherited diseases. For example, previous studies have shown that Latinos with greater European ancestry have a higher risk of breast cancer.

The genetics study by researchers from Cornell, the New York University School of Medicine, the University of Arizona, and Stanford University, appears online in the May 5, 2010 edition of the peer-reviewed Proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences and can be found online at www.pnas.org.

Senior authors include: Carlos Bustamante, a former Cornell computational biologist and geneticist now at Stanford's School of Medicine; and Harry Ostrer, director of the Human Genetics Program at New York University. Andres Moreno-Estrada, postdoctoral associate in Bustamante's lab, was also a co-author.

The study was funded by the National Institutes of Health.

Crist: Immigration reform can help Social Security

By BRENDAN FARRINGTON, AP Political Writer

TALLAHASSEE, May 13, 2010 (AP): Florida Gov. Charlie Crist, who's running for U.S. Senate as an independent, said Friday that providing a path to citizenship for undocumented immigrants will help keep Social Security solvent — an idea he favors over his opponent's suggestion to raise the eligibility age for benefits.

Crist told The Associated Press there are as many as 14 million undocumented immigrants in the country as part of an underground economy. If they paid into the Social Security system, it would help increase the worker-to-retiree ratio.

"It's certainly worth a very good debate and research," Crist said. "If there are people here that aren't paying into the system, which everyone agrees there are, that's in essence a form of fraud on the system."

The idea would be to provide a path to citizenship similar to the failed immigration overhaul proposed by President George W. Bush, former Sen. Mel Martínez, R-Florida, and Sen. John McCain, R-Ariz.

Crist said he doesn't support amnesty, but rather an "earned path to citizenship." Undocumented immigrants would have to apply for citizenship and be placed in line behind people already seeking it.

Crist was running as a Republican until deciding last month to run on his own after falling badly behind tea party favorite Marco Rubio in primary polls. The governor switched his voter registration to no party affiliation this week.

Rubio has proposed raising the age of eligibility for Social Security benefits for people now under 55, as well as restructuring the formula for increasing benefits to account for inflation.

"I couldn't support either of those, and I think we have to be more innovative," Crist said. "I don't want to punish anyone in order to fix it."

Democratic front-runner Kendrick Meek also opposes raising the age of eligibility.

Crist made his comments after Rubio said he supports a controversial new Arizona immigration law that requires state and local law officers to question people about their immigration status if there's reason to suspect they're in the country without documentation. Rubio previously opposed the law, but changed his position after the Legislature tweaked the language to ban racial profiling.

Republicans lost support among some Latino voters during the immigration debate, so Crist may be trying to appeal to Florida's large block of them.

AP-Univision Poll: Immigration splits U.S.-Americans

WASHINGTON, D.C., May 13, 2010 (AP): An Associated Press-Univision Poll has found that big majorities of Latinos consider undocumented immigrants a boon to the United States and condemn Arizona's new law targeting undocumented people. That is a sharp contrast to how non-Latinos view the smoldering issue of immigration.

The poll, taken earlier this month, found that 74 percent of Latinos said the undocumented immigrants in the U.S. mostly contribute to society. Just 35 percent of non-Latinos agreed.

Some 67 percent of Latinos said they oppose the Arizona law, compared with 20 percent of non-Latinos. The law allows local police to demand citizenship papers from suspected undocumented immigrants and to detain them if they cannot produce the documents.

How the poll on immigration was conducted

May 13, 2010: The Associated Press-Univision Poll on immigration was conducted by GfK Roper Public Affairs & Media from May 7-12, 2010. It is based on landline and cell phone telephone interviews with a nationally representative random sample of 901 Hispanic adults.

It was conducted as a supplement to this month's AP-GfK Poll, which was conducted May 7-11 and was based on a nationally representative sample of 1,002 adults.

Digits in the phone numbers dialed were generated randomly to reach households with unlisted and listed landline and cell phone numbers.

Interviews were conducted in both English and Spanish.

As is done routinely in surveys, results were weighted, or adjusted, to ensure that responses accurately reflect the population's makeup by factors such as age, sex, education, and race. In addition, the weighting took into account patterns of phone use—landline only, cell only, and both types—by region.

No more than one time in 20 should chance variations in the sample cause the results to vary by more than plus or minus 5.3 percentage points from the answers that would be obtained if all Hispanics in the U.S. were polled. For the AP-GfK poll, the margin of sampling error was plus or minus 4.3 percentage points.

There are other sources of potential error in polls, including the wording and order of questions.

The questions and results for this poll will be available <http://www.ap-gfkipoll.com>.

Gobernadora de Arizona forma panel para combatir "falsedades"

Por PAUL DAVENPORT

PHOENIX, el 13 de mayo del 2010 (AP): La gobernadora de Arizona, Jan Brewer, está formando una fuerza especializada conformada por funcionarios de turismo y líderes empresariales, a fin de combatir lo que calificó de "falsedades" sobre la nueva y controversial ley del estado contra la inmigración ilegal.

Brewer se reunió el jueves en privado con los líderes del sector turístico y posteriormente dijo a la prensa que está integrando un grupo que delineará una estrategia para enfrentar las críticas públicas a la ley.

La legislación requiere que la policía, cuando vigile el cumplimiento de otras normas, pregunte a una persona sobre su estatus migratorio, si existe una "sospecha razonable" de que la persona está ilegalmente en el país. Bajo la ley, el estar ilegalmente en el país sería un delito estatal.

Los críticos han dicho que la legislación podría derivar en discriminación racial, y algunos grupos y gobiernos municipales han exhortado a boicotear a Arizona y a sus empresas.

Brewer dijo que las acusaciones de que la ley derivará en discriminación racial son infundadas, y enfatizó que la legislación prohíbe específicamente el detener a una persona únicamente con base en su raza. También indicó que la gente considera erróneamente que cualquier persona que camine por las calles podrá ser abordada por las autoridades para pedirle que muestre sus documentos.

"El punto decisivo es que hay un montón de falsedades en torno a la propuesta de ley", señaló. "Uno no va a ser interrogado al caminar por una calle a menos de que haya cometido un delito".

Representantes del sector turístico no solicitaron cambios en la ley, dijeron

Immigration-Arizona - US governor forms task force on immigration law

By PAUL DAVENPORT, Associated Press Writer

PHOENIX, May 13, 2010 (AP): Republican Arizona Gov. Jan Brewer on Thursday formed a task force of tourism officials and business leaders to help the state's struggling tourism industry in the face of what she called "mistruths" about the state's controversial new law targeting undocumented immigration.

Brewer met privately with tourism industry leaders and later told reporters that she was forming a group of industry representatives and state officials to prepare a marketing strategy to deal with public criticism of the law.

The law, which is set to take effect late July, requires police to ask a person about his or her immigration status if there's "reasonable suspicion" that the person is in the country without documentation. Being in the country without documentation would be a state crime under the law.

Critics have said the law could lead to racial profiling, and some groups and city governments have called for boycotts of Arizona and its businesses.

Brewer said those charges that the law will produce racial profiling are unfounded, and she said the law specifically prohibits racial profiling.

She also said people mistakenly believe that just anybody walking on a street could be asked to produce identification.

"The bottom line is there are a lot of mistruths about the bill," she said. "You're not going to walk down the street and get questioned unless you've committed a crime."

Tourism industry representatives didn't request changes in the law, said Brewer and Debbie Johnson, head of a statewide hotel association and of a statewide tourism industry coalition.

"There was no discussion of it," Johnson said.

Votes coming on Michigan school retirement plan

By TIM MARTIN, Associated Press Writer

LANSING, May 14, 2010 (AP): Michigan lawmakers are getting ready to render what may be the final verdict Friday on a plan aimed at prompting thousands of public school employees to retire this summer.

Leaders in the Republican-led Senate and Democrat-led House reached an agreement in principle Thursday that would slightly increase pension benefits for eligible school employees to retire this summer. Remaining employees would be required to pay an additional 3 percent of their salaries into retiree health plans starting in July, according to the final version of a compromise bill reported to the House and Senate by a bipartisan committee.

It wasn't clear if there were enough votes to pass the bill in a relatively rare middle-of-the-night session of the Michigan Legislature.

The Michigan Education Association, the state's largest teachers union, opposes the compromise and was urging its members to contact lawmakers.

More than 50,000 school employees statewide could be eligible for the sweetened retirement benefits, although lawmakers guess only about half of them might take the incentive.

A retirement incentive plan might allow schools to avoid layoffs or save money by replacing older workers with younger, lower-paid employees. Schools also would save money because employees would be responsible for more retirement system costs.

Those savings would offset likely cuts in state aid made to schools on a per-student basis. There's a projected deficit of more than $400 million in the state's school aid fund for the fiscal year starting Oct. 1, meaning schools could lose more than $200 per student from this year's levels.

Supporters of the plan say it could save schools between $600 million and $700 million in the fiscal year starting Oct. 1.

Lawmakers hoped to complete a plan last month. Schools say a plan must be done as soon as possible so they have time to make employment decisions over the summer.

The school retirement legislation is Senate Bill 1227.

Town Hall Meeting & Know Your Rights Forum

Will Michigan become the next Arizona?

In response to the recent proposal to bring an Arizona-style anti-immigrant law to Michigan, the Reform Immigration for America—Michigan coalition, is organizing a town hall meeting at St. Anne's Church Parish Hall, 1000 St. Anne St., Detroit, on May 29, 2010, at 1:00 PM. Immigrants' rights supporters are encouraged to attend.

Elected officials and candidates will be invited to the meeting to publicly commit their support or opposition to the proposal. The town hall meeting will feature information on the details of the proposal, and a plan for how Michiganans can stop it. The meeting will conclude with an educational forum on immigrants' rights, and how to protect the family during a time of increasing pressure by the Border Patrol.

The event is being organized as a joint project with MOSES and other partners in the RIFA-MI coalition. For more information, contact: Luis Urdaneta, MOSES, lurdaneta@mosesmi.org, 313.414.6308 (Español) or Ryan Bates, RIFA-MI, rbates@reformimmigrationforamerica.org, 248.787.6767 (English).

ASK the EXPERT

DEAR Computer Discount,

I have Norton Antivirus, everything was working great until one morning a program popped up and say I have numerous infections and the only way to get rid of it is to buy this Antivirus call Antivirus 2010. I took it to a computer store and they said my computer is infected. How can I prevent this from happening again? — Chris

Chris,

There is a new strain of viruses that appears to be immune to all major retail Antivirus in the market that's called Malware. There are a few ways you can do to protect yourself from getting infected with Malware.

Make sure you have an updated Antivirus. Most antivirus are yearly subscription.

Most people get this from search engine like google, yahoo or m.s.n. Be careful when you are searching for something, try to stay on the first pages.

Look out for signs. Malware usually starts downloading to your computer during a search. When you are redirected to a different page, and you see a window downloading a program (with a download bar that indicates download status) Close that window IMMEDIATELY (you have approximately 5-8 seconds) Then, update your antivirus and do a full system scan.

If the program installed itself to your computer, try to do a full scan with your updated local antivirus. If that fails try to do a full system scan on safe mode (for advance computer users only)

Senator Fedor recognized by OCHLA for commitment to Latino issues

Columbus: The Ohio Commission on Latino Affairs (OCHLA) recognized State Senator Teresa Fedor (D-Toledo) with the "Legislator Advocate" award during its 2010 statewide Legislative Visit Day on May 18, 2010.

"I am honored to receive the Ohio Commission on Hispanic/Latino Affairs 'Legislator Advocate' award," said Fedor. "I will continue to promote public policy that positively affects the Latino Community."

OCHLA said of Fedor, "As a state Senator, Teresa Fedor has expended a tremendous amount of time, energy and effort into improving the lives of Latino Ohioans. Her work in the area of education, human trafficking, and advocating against local immigration measures has been sincerely appreciated by the Latino community all across Ohio."

According to OCHLA, Fedor spent 16 years working in inner-city Toledo public schools before coming to the legislature. She has a long-standing interest in promoting academic attainment for all children and protecting our most vulnerable young Ohioans—she sponsored, for example, "Día de los Niños," a bill promoting literacy and education of children on April 30th every year.

According to OCHLA—through its Executive Director

Lilleana Cavanaugh—Fedor is a champion on the issue of Human Trafficking, a problem that greatly affects vulnerable citizens, especially Latinos. As Vice-Chair of the Trafficking in Persons Study Commission, she ensured the Latino community had a voice and a seat on the Commission. Her bill, Substitute Senate Bill 235, will create a stand-alone felony for trafficking in persons and is being considered by the Senate Criminal Justice Committee.

OCHLA is an organization that advises state government on issues affecting Hispanic Ohioans, connects the diverse Latino communities across the state, and builds the capacity of community organizations so they may better serve the fast growing Latino population of Ohio.

At its Legislative Visit Day, OCHLA, along with Cleveland's Hispanic Roundtable and LULAC, welcomed community leaders at the State Capitol and the Riffe Building.

HOROSCOPE

ARIES: MARCH 21 - APRIL 20

You could step out of line and refuse to go along with this or you can keep feeding the myth that you're OK with it. I don't know why it hasn't occurred to you that avoiding the issue just isn't working.

TAURUS: APRIL 21 - MAY 20

As you rearrange your life the fast track has less appeal than it used to. Any chance to simplify what's gotten too complicated will show you that it's easier to live peacefully without all that nonsense.

GEMINI: JUNE 21 - JULY 20

Coming clean about things is always a shock to the one who doesn't want to hear it. The surprises that erupt as the truth gets aired could easily turn this scenario into an Academy Award winning mini-series.

CANCER: JUNE 21 - JULY 20

Don't try to jump in and fix this. For all you know it could just create more chaos. As much as it hurts to see them suffer, sometimes you have to sit back and let people get their lessons the hard way.

LEO: JULY 21 - AUGUST 20

Something's changed and you're not into it. Things haven't felt right for a while. What you can't put your finger on contains elements of passive aggression that make it hard to know if this is about you.

VIRGO: AUGUST 21 - SEPTEMBER 20

Someone's at it again. It seems that they can't deal with the fact that you refuse to go along with their plans. Stick to your guns. You've been through this enough times to know how to handle it.

LIBRA: SEPTEMBER 21 - OCTOBER 20

In the middle of a major crisis it's best to deal with one thing at a time. This won't settle down overnight. If it's more than you bargained for, you know as well as I that we never get more than we can handle.

SCORPIO: OCTOBER 21 - NOVEMBER 20

You're being way too judgmental. It's OK to think you're right about everything; we all do! But you're nuts if you take it seriously. Get over yourself and try to figure out how to take people as they come.

SAGITTARIUS: NOVEMBER 21 - DECEMBER 20

Your work has to take precedence over everything else right now. That being the case start getting off on your job. When the fun factor just ain't there it comes down to finding the joy in the discipline.

CAPRICORN: DECEMBER 21 - JANUARY 20

Those of you who can't deal with the complexities of your private life are about to find out that you can no longer avoid them. In your face situations will raise questions that could put you on the spot.

AQUARIUS: JANUARY 21 - FEBRUARY 20

The pressure is off. With nothing to tie you down life is suddenly wide open and free. Time seems to be worth more than money these days. You happen to have all the time in the world; what are you doing with it?

PISCES: FEBRUARY 21 - MARCH 20

You can't get too hung up on the fact that you're in the middle of a train wreck. Stop emoting and deal with it. Down to earth choices have to be made and unfortunately no one can make them but you.

Tigres del Norte: Arizona trata a hispanos como delinquentes

Por ISTRACACHECO

MEXICO, el 13 de mayo del 2010 (AP): Los Tigres del Norte no descartaron apoyar un boicot contra el territorio estadounidense de Arizona por la ley de inmigración que promulgó y que, a su juicio, hace ver a los hispanos como si fueran delinquentes.

Los miembros de la legendaria banda dijeron que una semana antes de que se aprobara la ley tocaron en una universidad de aquel estado y ya se sentía un ambiente tenso.

"Estamos consternados con esto. Creo que es una humillación", declaró en rueda de prensa Jorge Hernández uno de los fundadores del grupo con 40 años de historia.

"Es una ley que en verdad nos va a poner en el ojo de los americanos como delinquentes, creo que esto le va a dar la facilidad para ser aun más duros, más drásticos y tal vez hasta más exagerados en señalar y en acusar", lamentó.

Con más de 40 discos publicados desde el 1968

y ganadores de cinco Grammys y tres Latin Grammys, la discriminación racial no es nueva para el grupo. A finales de la década de 1960, a los Tigres les negaron el servicio y los sacaron de un restaurante en Oregon.

"Los artistas, los grupos, los solistas, creo que debemos hacer algún tipo de movimiento para ver qué se puede hacer" en contra de la ley, señaló Hernández.

"Hasta ahorita no tenemos una nueva fecha en Arizona y no creo que vayamos a tener algo hasta que no se haga una resolución de lo que va a pasar", aseguró.

La violencia en México es otro de los temas que le preocupa a los integrantes de la agrupación, quienes hicieron un llamado a las personas a exigirle una solución eficaz al gobierno, que incluya el combate a la pobreza.

"Nosotros (como músicos) podemos levantar la voz, cantar canciones y decir lo que sucede, pero también tenemos que exigirle a nuestro gobierno como ciudadanos... que las cosas cambien", dijo uno de los más jóvenes del conjunto, Luis Hernández.

"Es un poco difícil porque culturalmente parece que estamos acostumbrados a ciertas cosas pero creo que todo se puede lograr y sobre todo las nuevas generaciones involucrarse más", reflexionó.

"Queremos salir tranquilos a la calle y nuestra familia... es una preocupación que creo que a todos nos consterna", agregó.

Desde el 2006 la violencia relacionada al crimen organizado ha dejado más de 22.700 muertos. En meses recientes se han cancelado espectáculos ante el temor de actos de violencia, según reportan medios de comunicación.

El grupo recibió el jueves la distinción de un disco de oro por más de 45.000 copias vendidas en México de su más reciente álbum "La granja".

Los Tigres cerrarán además el primer Festival Vive Gruperio que se celebra en la capital mexicana este fin de semana y en el que tocarán más de 40 bandas de música regional mexicana.

Crew defeats Chivas USA, 1 to 0

COLUMBUS, May 15, 2010: Guillermo Barros Schelotto scored on a penalty kick in the 90th minute to lead the Crew to a dramatic 1-0 victory over Chivas USA in Crew Stadium, after Chivas' Justin Braun took down Chad Marshall near the left post on a Schelotto free kick.

Crew defender Gino Padula made two huge plays in the second half to keep the match scoreless through the hour mark. The left back first cleared a shot off the goal line by Jonathan Bornstein in the 58th minute. Then on the Chivas' next possession, Blair Gavin pounced on the loose ball in the box and fired toward the net only to see Padula head the ball away at the line.

Chivas had another opportunity in the 85th minute when Braun went on a breakaway, but Crew keeper William Heshner came off his line to snuff Braun on the right side of the box and then outraced the forward to the rebound on the left side as Chivas.

It was the last match for Crew's Robbie Rogers and Marshall (along with Chivas' Bornstein and Sacha Klejstan) before leaving for the U.S. World Cup camp.

Thornton kept the match scoreless with a difficult diving save in the 27th. Schelotto set up for a free kick from 40 yards but tapped the ball to Adam Moffat, who drove a low ball that eluded the wall but took a slight deflection at the second line of defense. Thornton went stretched to push the attempt away.

The Crew is 4-0-2 on the season and 4-0-0 at home.

A new Mexican restaurant in town celebrates Cinco de Mayo with mariachi

By Ingrid Marie Rivera, La Prensa Correspondent

LORAIN, May 15, 2010: The owners of a new Mexican restaurant on Oberlin Avenue wanted to celebrate the Cinco de Mayo holiday properly. So they held off on their formal celebration until the local Mariachi band, Joya de México, from Cleveland could arrive and perform at their site.

The restaurant "Cinco de Mayo Puebla" was finally able to host the festivities, Saturday, May 15, 2010.

Trumpet and acoustic guitar sounds filled the dimly lit restaurant that gave off a red hue and a festive yet cozy and welcoming feeling. The ceiling is painted to resemble the blue sky, small banners displaying "Corona de Mayo" are hung from the ceiling, the chairs are painted with colorful cowboy images and sombreros are hung on the walls - all helping to transport the attendees to México.

Roughly 50 people filled the restaurant at one given time and enjoyed a variety of authentic Mexican foods while they were serenaded by the Mariachi Band Joya de México.

The Cinco de Mayo holiday is not México's Independence Day celebration; instead, it commemorates the victory of the Mexican militia over the French Army at the Battle of Puebla in 1862.

Authentic Mexican food is what the restaurant, "Cinco de Mayo Puebla," at 4290 Oberlin Avenue, strives to have every day and what sets it apart from other Mexican restaurants, the owners said. The restaurant has been open since January or four months.

Rosa Malin, owner of the restaurant and also a Spanish teacher for Pre-K and Kindergarten children, said she always dreamed of opening her own restaurant but she wanted to remain a teacher; both are her passions, she said. With the help of her husband, Gregory Malin, and her family friend Luis Garza, they were finally able to make that dream a reality.

"We just opened the restaurant and if all goes well we hope to open more restaurants in the future," said Rosa Malin, originally from the State of Nayarit, México.

Malin, from Shaker Heights, OH, said many of her frequent customers are not Mexican or from a Latino background.

"When you hear them say that they love the Mexican food, that they would love to learn the Spanish language, that makes you feel so good," she said.

Luis Garza, manager and associate of the restaurant, said their location offers Mexican dishes that are often difficult to find in other Mexican restaurants, but are very popular dishes in México including the "Mole Poblano" and "Chili Poblano."

"All of the recipes that I have here are authentic," Garza said "I wanted to make this restaurant different from all the others," he said.

He added their food is always fresh because all dishes including the salsas and rice are prepared daily.

Garza, with origins in México City, México, said his favorite dish at the restaurant is the "Burrito Chilango," also called "México City," - the dish he created.

The burrito carries three different types of meat including Shrimp, beefsteak and carnitas, or pork, plus vegetables like green peppers and onions. It comes with rice and beans.

"There are people that travel to México and they eat there, and then they come here asking 'hey, do you have this? No? Come on, and you're a Mexican restaurant?'" Garza said "It's just that the preparation of those Mexican dishes are very difficult. And here we have those dishes that are hard to find in other places," he said.

The guests that Saturday evening agreed.

the State of Jalisco, México; he was there for Med school, and I asked (the Mariachi band Joya de México) to play 'Guadalajara' for me. It was great. It was perfect," Nan Salvatore said.

They said they were also greatly pleased with enchiladas, tamales, tostadas, chalupas, fajitas, and burritos. They also serve seafood, taco salads, chimichangas and other dishes of beef, chicken or pork. For dessert they offer a special "Chimi Cheese-cake" and Flan. Plus, they offer Margaritas and both ally, and brought both our moms," Evelyn Arocho said, "I would recommend it highly for people to come here. I mean the food is authentic. It has really good taste. But the excellent service just brings the package together."

Garza, who worked previously in construction, said plans are to create a natural fence in the front of the restaurant to add privacy by planting several 6-foot-tall trees and even placing a water fountain near the trees.

They plan to have a grand opening party soon this year when the construction is complete.

Malin said she is optimistic their restaurant will be successful.

"I don't lose the faith," Rosa Malin said "I believe that we will be able to push this restaurant forward. Because sometimes we are sad because not very many people visit. That's the way it is in the beginning. But here we are."

Owner Rosa Malin, her daughter, Katie Malin, 14, and Associate Luis Garza in front of their restaurant, "Cinco de Mayo Puebla"

Mike and Nan Salvatore, from Erie, PA, were staying in a local hotel when they were recommended to visit "Cinco de Mayo Puebla" after they asked where they could find Mexican food.

They said they did not expect to find a live Mariachi band, but welcomed the great surprise.

"We have lived in Guadalajara, (the capital of the menu.

"I had enchiladas. We know Mexican food. Some places, sometimes, you can tell the food was brought in frozen. But this was very good. This wasn't out of a microwave. And tamales, we don't see that on menus very often," she said.

The menu includes many of the popular and cherished Mexican dishes including U.S. and Mexican beers.

The couple, Evelyn and Ivan Arocho, said they have visited the restaurant several times because they enjoy the food and good service. The Arochos of Puerto Rican background also have Mexicans in their family, Evelyn Arocho said.

"I love enchiladas. His favorite is carne asada. We came for Mother's day actu-

UN 2010 reports highlight the Persecution of Falun Gong

Three Special Rapporteurs submitted their yearly investigations and conclusions to the UN Human Rights Council at its 13th session this year. As in previous years, the allegations of severe human rights violations by Communist China were a significant portion of the reports. Human rights violations against Falun Gong practitioners continued.

Rapporteurs included Manfred Nowak, whose mandate is to investigate torture; Asma Jahangir, whose mandate is freedom of religion and belief; and Margaret Sekaggya, who investigates the status of human rights defenders around the world.

All three sent numerous urgent appeals to the Chinese government concerning Falun Gong practitioners, Tibetans, Christians, and Uighurs, or those who have sought to defend their legal and human rights.

The persecution of Chinese lawyers have been raised in several reports, some of them were jailed because taking up cases to defend Falun Gong practitioners in China.

Ms. Sekaggya, for example, on 31 March 2009, sent a joint urgent appeal with other Special Rapporteurs to gain information about Wei Liangyue, director of the Harbin-based Jiaodian Law Firm, and his wife, Du Yongjing. During over 20 years of his law practice Mr. Wei provided legal aid to local people facing human rights violations, including Falun Gong practitioners who had been detained for their beliefs, Ms. Sekaggya said. Mr. Wei and Ms. Du were detained by the authorities, not allowed to hire a lawyer to represent them or discuss their case publicly, and were feared to have been psychologically or physically abused while in custody.

Another human rights lawyer, Zhang Kai, was "was hung up with handcuffs in an iron cage," and his colleague who also defended Falun Gong practitioners was "slapped in the face by a police officer." During their interrogation they were both threatened not to defend any Falun Gong cases, Ms. Sekaggya wrote.

Mr. Nowak gave a similarly troubling portrayal of the violence visited on innocents by Chinese security forces, which included: "16 deaths of Falun Gong practitioners due to injuries allegedly sustained in custody in China." Mr. Nowak sought an explanation for those deaths, along with other cases of harassments, beating, and torture.

Cases include that of Zhou Xiangyang, who was sentenced to 9 years in prison in May 2003 where he was "brutally tortured" for allegedly refusing to give up his belief in Falun Gong (he was allegedly told that he would have to renounce his belief before being eligible for medical treatment).

Wang Yonghang, a former lawyer from Dalian City, Liaoning Province, was severely beaten, resulting in a broken right ankle. Others were tortured to critical condition, put into solitary confinement for months, or sent to forced labor camps for years because of their Falun Gong-related peaceful activities or beliefs.

Jahangir, a Special Rapporteur on freedom of religion and belief, dealt with many of the same issues, and referred to some of the same cases as Mr. Nowak and Ms. Sekaggya. The allegations Jahangir transmitted to the CCP also included information related to the 16 deaths of Falun Gong practitioners due to injuries allegedly sustained in custody.

"While the circumstances under which the deaths occurred differ, all the victims were Falun Gong practitioners and they all died under the supervision of law enforcement officers or soon after their release from custody," Ms. Jahangir noted. "Concern is expressed that the arrests and deaths of these individuals were solely connected with their activities as Falun Gong practitioners."

The government of China's typical response to such reports has been to ignore or flatly deny them.

UN Special Rapporteurs' reports are among the most highly regarded documents on the status of human rights in the concerned countries. Its annual reports - based on allegations received and investigated the previous year, given with the relevant government's response - often generate heated debate during UN sessions.

UT partners in national women's health series

Most people think of a renowned artist when the name da Vinci is mentioned, but the da Vinci Surgical System is actually one of today's most sophisticated technologies for minimally invasive procedures.

The University of Toledo and local Curves fitness centers are hosting several events this month as part of a national "da Vinci Women's Health: Small Steps" series to educate women about wellness and prevention issues.

Drs. John P. Geisler and Nauman Khurshid, faculty members in the department of obstetrics and gynecology, will discuss the da Vinci system, which utilizes state-of-the-art robotic and computer technologies for certain procedures, including hysterectomy and cancer treatments, among others.

Procedures performed with the da Vinci system generally benefit patients by allowing greater surgical precision, which translates into shorter hospital stays and recovery times, less pain, less risk of infection, less blood loss, fewer transfusions, less scarring and quicker return to normal activities.

Events will take place on the following dates: Tuesday, May 18, 1 to 2 p.m., Curves, 6377 Monroe St., Sylvania; Thursday, May 20, 6:30 to 7:30 p.m., Curves, 2526 N. Reynolds Road, Toledo; and Tuesday, May 25, 6:30 to 7:30 p.m., University of Toledo George Isaac Minimally Invasive Surgery Center lobby.

Geisler and Khurshid will offer simulated demonstrations of the da Vinci system. For information, call 419.383.4267.

Report: Few Latino high school dropouts earn GED

By CHRISTINE ARMARIO, Associated Press Writer

May 13, 2010 (AP): A report released Thursday by the Pew Hispanic Center found that one in 10 Latino students who drop out of high school go on to earn a General Equivalency Development degree.

Educators and students say limited outreach, immigration and pressure to work may be to blame.

Using data from the U.S. Census Bureau, researchers found that fewer Latino students earn a GED credential than white or black dropouts. Black students earned a GED at a rate of two in 10. For white students, the rate is three in 10.

The nonpartisan research organization says the lower rate among Latinos is notable because they also have higher dropout rates: 41 percent of Latinos ages 20 or older do not have a regular high school degree, compared to 23 percent of blacks and 14 percent of whites.

Richard Fry, a senior research associate at the center, said some of the Latinos who did not finish high school are immigrants who may not have had any educational training in the United States. For these students, it takes time to learn and access information about earning a U.S. educational credential.

According to the report, the longer foreign-born Latinos without a high school degree are in the United States, the more likely they are to earn a GED.

But Fry said a puzzle still remains: Latinos born in the United States who drop out of high school are also unlikely to have a GED. The report found that only 21 percent earn the credential.

"We do not know precisely why," Fry said. "I would speculate that school districts and community service organizations do not as effectively promote and recruit Latino dropouts into GED preparation programs as white dropouts."

The report notes that a GED is a crucial step forward: Four in 10 students with a GED pursue additional education, compared to only 1 in 10 of those without an alternative degree. Students with a GED are also able to apply and enroll in degree-granting colleges and universities.

Arayzel Barragan, 24, dropped out of high school about five years ago after her father became ill. In the years after, Barragan, who emigrated with her family from Panama when she was 9, got married and had a child. She enrolled in GED courses at a school in Miami earlier this year.

She said some Latino students are undocumented and fearful to enroll, concerned it will somehow affect their immigration status; others are scared about learning a new language.

"It took me five years to learn," Barragan said between classes on Thursday.

Other students at The English Center, an adult educational center in Miami, where more than 200 students are enrolled in GED classes, said it can be a challenge to find out where and how to take the classes—with most of the information coming word of mouth through friends and family.

"It's a lack of information," said Catherine Pacheco, 18, who emigrated from Nicaragua six months ago and is taking English classes before beginning her GED.

Teachers at the school also said that for some Latino students, helping support their parents and families takes precedence over earning the degree.

"It concerns me when there's an opportunity to get a higher education, and they can't," said Dr. Maritza Barrios, the school's vocational department chair. "And it's very sad when a child comes up to you and they say they have to leave to help their mother pay the rent."

Owens Community College Board of Trustees Awards 2010 Academic Excellence Scholarships

Area high school seniors recently were honored by Owens Community College's Board of Trustees for their outstanding achievements, receiving thousands of dollars in new scholarships through the Trustees' Academic Excellence Scholarship Program.

"Owens Community College is honored to recognize the Trustees' Academic Excellence scholarship recipients for their dedication to academic excellence and outstanding service to their respective schools and communities," said Dee Talmage, Owens Chair of the Board of Trustees. "On behalf of the Board of Trustees, I would like to commend them on their accomplishments and welcome them to Owens Community College."

The Owens Community College Excellence Scholarship Program was created in 1998 by Owens' Board of Trustees to recognize the outstanding achievements of graduating high school seniors. Each recipient will receive a $2,000 two-year scholarship. Visit laprensa1.com for a list of the recipients.

Brewer y Debbie Johnson, directora de una asociación de hoteles en el estado y de una coalición turística estatal.

"No hubo una discusión en torno a ella", afirmó Johnson.

El estado proporcionará un financiamiento inicial de 250,000 dólares para la campaña de mercadotecnia, cuyo primer paso será reanudar un esfuerzo ya hecho en el pasado para exhortar a los habitantes de Arizona a vacacionar en su propio estado, agregó Johnson.

Otros detalles, incluyendo qué mensajes enviar a la gente que no es del estado, aún no han sido decididos, señaló la funcionaria turística.

Brewer dijo estar preocupada por las exhortaciones a boicotear a la entidad, pues considera que las pérdidas comerciales la dañarían, así como a su sector turístico y "a muchas personas inocentes".

"Queremos que todo mundo siga viniendo acá", manifestó.

Johnson, presidente de la Asociación de Alojamiento y Hoteles de Arizona, y presidente de la Alianza Turística estatal, dijo que los boicots que pretenden presionar a las autoridades del estado están mal dirigidos, pues principalmente lastiman a las personas que trabajan en las empresas relacionadas con el turismo.

"La preocupación es por las 200,000 familias que tratan de ganarse la vida", indicó.

Brewer dijo que la fuerza especializada que "dirá la verdad" intentará desarrollar formas para "regenerar o reposicionar la marca de Arizona".

Immigration-Arizona

The state will provide startup funding of $250,000 for the marketing campaign, which will start by reviving a past effort to urge Arizonans to vacation in their own state, Johnson added.

Other details, including what messages to aim to non-Arizonans, haven't been decided, Johnson said.

Brewer said she was concerned about the boycott calls, saying lost trade would harm the state, its tourism industry and "a lot of innocent people."

"We want everyone to continue to come here," she said.

Johnson, president of the Arizona and Lodging Association and president of the Arizona Tourism Alliance, said boycotts intended to pressure the state's policymakers are misguided because they mainly hurt people working in the state's tourism-related businesses.

"The concern is about the 200,000 families that are trying to make a living," she said.

Brewer said the "truth-telling" task force would try to develop ways to "rebrand or reposition Arizona's brand."

ABLE and LAWO Board president awarded Pro Bono recognition

The president of the boards of trustees for Advocates for Basic Legal Equality, Inc. (ABLE) and Legal Aid of Western Ohio, Inc. (LAWO) has been chosen as the recipient of the 2010 Presidential Award for Pro Bono Service from the Ohio Legal Assistance Foundation (OLAF).

Toledo Attorney Laurie Pangle received her award at the Ohio State Bar Association Council of Delegates meeting in Dayton.

Pangle is being recognized for her long-term leadership and support of legal services to low-income persons and for her pro bono work. She began serving on the ABLE board of trustees in 1998 and joined the Legal Services of Northwest Ohio (now Legal Aid of Western Ohio) board of trustees at its inception in 1999.

During this time, legal services in northwest Ohio was undergoing a major transformation, beginning with the establishment of Legal Aid Line and the consolidations of ABLE, LSNO, the Toledo Legal Aid Society, and Erie County Legal Aid. In 2004 and 2005, ABLE and LAWO consolidated with counties around Lima, Mansfield, Dayton, and Springfield.

Today, ABLE and LAWO are responsible for serving the residents of 32 counties and all migrant farm workers statewide. Pangle played a prominent role in the successful planning and implementation of these consolidations, which have resulted in improved access and increased services for low income people. Her leadership continued as she provided key board leadership and vision for the establishment of the Center for Equal Justice in Toledo.

In addition to her leadership and volunteer work with ABLE and LAWO, Laurie has also been a strong supporter and participant in pro bono work. "Laurie is the kind of volunteer who shows her support through her actions," says Joseph Tafelski, executive director of ABLE.

"Most recently, most recently, she has participated in the statewide Foreclosure Legal Assistance Group (FLAG) program providing legal representation to families in need and supporting and assisting other volunteer attorneys on cases." Pangle is a partner with Spengler, Nathanson, where she has been employed since 2002.

The OLAF Presidential Award for Pro Bono Service is presented annually by the President of the OLAF board of trustees to an individual, firm, or organization that has provided outstanding leadership in the delivery of pro bono legal services in the State of Ohio. It is one of the most prestigious awards given to individuals for pro bono or legal services work in Ohio.

Past recipients include the Honorable Walter Rice, Vorys Sater Seymour and Pease, Richard Pogue, Richard Cordray, the Greater Dayton Volunteer Lawyers Project, Bill Weisenberg, David Kutik, Denis Murphy, and Gillam and Ireland.
